The effectiveness of the ceremony does not depend on chemistry, but on our relationship with God. I am not clear on whether the reformed church teaches representation or not but it clearly states in the book that Evangelical nondenominational churches do believe in representation. Although an elder would officiate in such situations when one was available, we permitted a member to lead when an elder was not available.

It is simply my opinion that some were able to cover their topic better than others. The Bible does not attach any significance or importance to the age of the flour, nor whether it was leavened.
