Life's Poetry. With the others in our group, I watched as the executive persona of Scott Weiss delivered his speech from the screen.

However, extreme re-experiencing, in which all contact with the current environment is lost, is a common feature of PTSD. We hope that this approach will allow advances in cognitive neuroscience to inform a wide spectrum of psychological treatments that are applicable to many different disorders. Seventy-five percent of the patients stated that they had not been anxious in agoraphobic-type situations before experiencing the event that occurred in their memory. Flirting or being dirty. Both systems are conceived of as part of normal memory systems. Naturalistic studies reviewed earlier have shown that recurrent intrusions involve memories that may be perceived from a field of view. In other disorders, in which no corresponding dissociation between memory systems is implicated, the disturbance is viewed as contributing much more to maintenance than to onset.
